

Avon™

The clinically proven High Risk Avon pressure reducing mattress, has been developed using the very latest combustion modified ether (CME) technology. This high quality product features a castellated foam surface with a very specialist heel management area.

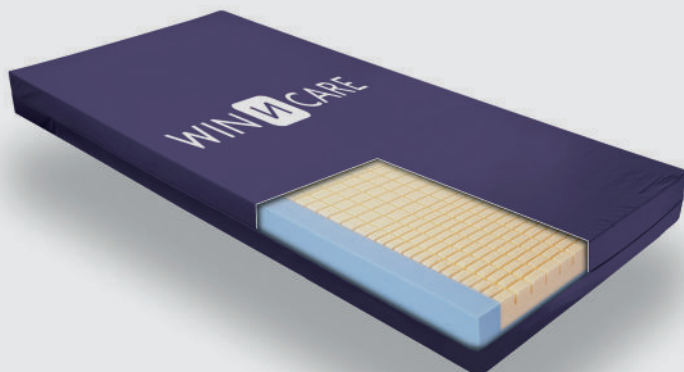

The pressure reducing castellated central zone maximises re-distribution in the most vulnerable areas, so that the mainstream patient weight can be managed effectively.

The castellations not only provide superior pressure management and postural support but it's channels are cut to ensure a constant air dispersion occurs around the patient.
